

JOHN CLEVELY, MASTER OF WINE

John Clevely, M.W.

A VOTRE SANTÉ!

Our staff will be pleased to guide you in your choice, according to the menu of the day. But what really counts is 'how does the wine taste in the glass?' and uniqueness of the local terroir and yet, where possible, being faithful to family traditions. Now of growers following organic or biodynamic principles and of talented winemakers searching for more minerality or intensity of flavour and finesse, but retaining the expression. Although the soil, the grape variety, the climate and the yield remain paramount, we read doubt that it aids the digestion. Whatever your own view on life may be, I tend to back the Hemingway philosophy and moreover find that wine stimulates conversation, breaks down barriers and although it is a much used phrase, a day without wine really is like a day without sunshine. And there is no

Ernest Hemingway, novelist, short story writer and war correspondent, thought wine was the most civilized thing in the world, whereas the Greek philosopher Diogenes – known as the Cynic – enjoyed wine most when someone else was paying for it!

WINE PUTS LIFE INTO PERSPECTIVE.
